Homily

Today is the 19th Sunday in Ordinary Time. Prayer is to be face to face with God, and to remain in tranquility. When Elijah faced God on Mount Horeb, he met God, who came close as a tiny whispering voice. Jesus prayed all night on a mountain and then walked on water to meet the disciples. When we can face our reality honestly, in peace and stillness, we can meet God. This ability to stay in silence and solitude is the power of faith which enables us to walk on water.

Paul, in the situation that his fellow Jewish people do not accept Jesus, nonetheless reminds them that Jesus is of the same Jewish tradition, and expresses his care for them. Paul's attitude shows us what true prayer is. Prayer delivers the love of God and shares it.

Loneliness and solitude are two different things. Loneliness means to be alone and not able to accept being alone without hardship and difficulty. Hence, one can still be lonely even when surrounded by many others. This is because those in loneliness cannot meet God and have any communion with themselves or with others. Elijah could not meet God in the storm, the earthquake, or the fire. But he could meet God in a tiny whispering sound.

On the other hand, solitude is to be alone, but to gain inner strength. In solitude, there is a power to be united with God, who is the source of our existence. If we can stay in solitude like this, we can remain in God whenever and wherever. In this solitude, our existence is based on God.

Jesus prayed alone all night on a mountain. The time and place that people tend to fear became an opportunity in which Jesus gains new power and strength from God. His prayer becomes an event which causes his faith in God to grow bigger. His prayer brings God closer. Therefore, Jesus goes to the disciples by walking on water.

That we can stay in complete silence with God, beyond the world, is the essence of prayer. Prayers allows us to be united with God and have communion with Him. This prayer lets us know God more deeply and become more like Him. Paul, through his prayer, feels pity for the Jews. He feels sorry that the Jewish people do not accept Jesus as the way to salvation. He asks them to meet God truly, through Jesus, like he has. In this way, true prayer is revealed as love.

In order to pray truly, we have to ask to go beyond loneliness and enter into solitude. We have to ask to remain fully in God. We have to let God be our everything. We have to ask to receive spiritual strength coming from God. We have to ask to find God without this effort, we cannot pray truly.

Also, true prayer must be revealed as love of one's neighbors. The proof that my prayer to God is true depends on whether, in my prayer, I strive to practice the love of neighbors and help them to find God. This is the proof of a true prayer. Elijah, Paul, and Jesus accomplish God's will through their prayer. We too must ask for the grace to pray truly

Fr. Namgil Kim

Liturgy Q&A

1. Why Communion Antiphon before the Eucharist?

Communion Antiphon further characterizes the community as One in the Lord. At Mass, Jesus Christ is sacrificed as the Lamb of God, becoming the bread of life in the form of broken bread. Communion Antiphon is sung by the community in word or song just before the Eucharist, expressing the excitement of joy and gratitude for being united with the Lord.

2. Do we begin the Communion Antiphon in words/songs after a narrator cites "Communion Antiphon"?

No. Liturgically, Communion Antiphon is either spoken or sung. Communion Antiphon refers to the liturgical sequence of flows, such as the Entrance Antiphon, the Responsorial Psalm, and the Gospel Acclamation, which are not spoken by the narrator during any liturgy. For example, just as the narrator does not say, "Responsorial Psalm," when singing or saying the Responsorial Psalm, the narrator does not say "Communion Antiphon" when singing or saying the actual Communion Antiphon. As the celebrant priest receives the Eucharist from the altar, the entire congregation joins in singing or saying the Eucharistic chant. Communion Antiphon is chosen for each Mass, either spoken or sung.
