Homily

4th Easter Sunday of Easter

Often I meet people from New York, especially when I meet someone who comes from the neighborhood where I used to live, it is a pleasure to talk to them. This is because we have common ground. We have stories to share about the parks we used to frequent, our favorite restaurants, art galleries, and performance venues. There are times when I meet people who come from Seoul. When I meet someone from Myeongdong, the atmosphere becomes even more delightful, and much more to talk about. There are many places to visit and see near Myeongdong. There's the Hanok Village in Namsan, Cheonggyecheon, Gyeongbokgung Palace, Daehakro, and Namdaemun Market. There are also many places to eat. The bindaetteok at Gwangjang Market, a whole chicken in Jongno, haejanguk in Bukchang-dong, kalguksu in Myeongdong, golbaengi in Euljiro, grilled cutlassfish in Namdaemun, jokbal in Jangchung-dong, and cold noodles in Myeongdong.

When men get together and have ice break time we start to talk about military service. In army, there are many so-called 'specialties.' There are 'specialties' like driving, administration, communication, engineering, intelligence, military police, medic, chaplaincy, and infantry. There are many other stories, but when talking about one's specialty, there is often a sparkle in one's eyes. In my case, I served in the reserve forces, which is administrative work among the specialties. I often think about what the specialty of a baptized believer might be. It would be wonderful if specialties like; prayer, missions, Bible, sharing, service, and pilgrimage to holy places became our specialties.

Today is the 4th Sunday of Easter, and the church has designated it as "Vocation Sunday." Jesus said to his disciples, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few. Therefore, pray earnestly to the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest." In 1964, Pope Paul VI designated the 4th Sunday of Easter as Vocation Sunday to put Jesus' words into practice. It was meant to invite young people who would become "laborers in the vineyard" that is priests and religious. I have something to say specifically about Vocation Sunday since once I served as the director of a diocesan vocation director for 5 years. My main task was to select theology students, help them become priests, and oversee the ordination ceremonies and Vocation Sunday events. There are many memorable events from my time as the vocational director, but among them I want to share three.

First, I produced a documentary called 'Priests.' Over a million people have watched this documentary, and I have heard that it's still used in catechesis for prospective priests. Through this work, we showed the audience the process of becoming a Roman Catholic priest, the ordination ceremony and stories of new priests, and various pastoral scenes. If you're interested, you can find 'Priests' on YouTube. Subscribing and liking is an act of love. I made a brief appearance in the documentary.

Second, I pushed a way to provide a dormitory for prospective seminarians. A 5-story building near the seminary was available at a low price, and the diocese purchased it. There were deep discussions about the future usage of the building. The director of administration suggested using it as lodging for senior clergy since it's next to the seminary. The director of youth ministry suggested using it as lodging for clergy in charge of youth ministry since it's next to the seminary and close to Myeongdong. I suggested using it as a dormitory for prospective seminarians. I argued that if prospective seminarians were close to the seminary, it would be beneficial for their priestly formation, and the decision was up to the Cardinal. After dinner, by chance, I went out for a walk with the Cardinal and he asked me "What is your opinion of the usage of the building?" I answered "If it's for senior clergy, it's like investing in the past. If it's for clergy in charge of youth ministry, it's like investing in the present. However, if it's for prospective seminarians, it's like investing in the future." What was the decision the Cardinal made? Take a guess, that's right. The Cardinal supported my idea, and the building became a dormitory for prospective seminarians for 10 years already.

Third, there was a 'Preparation Committee for the Papal Visited In 2014,' was formed. Pope Francis visited Korea for the Asian Youth Day and the beatification ceremony of 124 Korean martyrs. I was in charge of the 'Spiritual Formation Group' in the preparation committee since I was the Vocation director, and the bishop entrusted me with the mission. I prepared the prayers for the beatification ceremony and created the materials needed for the ceremony. I was able to complete such an important task despite my shortcomings because of the sweat and effort of volunteers and God's great mercy. While I had visible roles as the Vocation director for 5 years, I was far from being a priest who resembles Christ. I also lacked an understanding of the pains and struggles of theology students. I strive to become a humble priest who exudes the fragrance of Christ in silence. "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. I am the good shepherd; I know my sheep and my sheep know me, just as the Father knows me and I know the Father."
