Homily

8th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Dear parishioners, how are you?
48 years ago, year 1977, I was in my second year of middle school. I still vividly remember my teacher's saying during a class. "What is the purpose of your studies? Is it to become a 'great person'? That is possible. A great person can achieve success, gain power, and accumulate wealth. Is it to become a 'learned person'? That is also possible. A learned person can acquire new knowledge through scholastic. Knowledge can be a source of strength for overcoming difficulties. Knowledge can be the seed of culture and civilization. Or is it to become a 'true person'? This is the correct answer I am looking for. I hope you all study to become a true person. A true person reflects on who they are. A true person contemplates where they are. A true person transcends the boundary between life and death." Although 48 years have passed, my teacher's words still resonate deeply with me. Indeed, words have great power. As the saying goes, "A single word can repay a thousand debts. Kind words bring kindness in return." I hope the words that pass through my lips will be words that inspire and resonate deeply with others.

On the other hand, some words close people's hearts. There are words that, though seemingly right and reasonable, cause great wounds to those who hear them. The first is judgment. When the Magi said that Jesus would be born in Bethlehem, the scribes judged that the Messiah couldn't be born there. When parents tell their children, "Will you ever get anything right, you are useless! " children will be wounded by such judgment. The second is criticism. When Jesus cast out demons and healed the sick, the Pharisees criticized Him, saying He drove out demons by the power of the prince of demons. One of the criminals on the cross criticized Jesus, saying, " If you are the Son of God, save yourself and us!" When parents say to their child, "Why are you always like this? " child is deeply hurt.

The third is coercion. Saint Paul said " God has appointed in the Church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers; then those who work miracles, those who have the gift of healing, helping administration, and various kinds of works. Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Do all work miracles? If parents ignore their child's talents and abilities and force them into medical or law school, the child will suffer. The fourth is taking things for granted. When a parishioner who has served the church for many years says they need a break due to physical exhaustion, a priest might respond, "Isn't it only natural to serve God all the time?" Such words will wound the parishioner. When a friend shares their hardships and worries, saying, "Why are you making such a big deal? Everyone lives like that." When a girlfriend expresses her need for comfort, and the boyfriend responds, "If you love me, you should understand that much." this can lead to the end of the relationship.

Today's second reading says "Brothers and sisters, when this perishable body puts on the imperishable, and this mortal body puts on immortality, then the saying that is written will be fulfilled. The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brothers and sisters, be steadfast, immovable, and always excelling in the work of the Lord." These are words of encouragement and strength for believers going through difficult times. These are words that proclaim that eternal life exists beyond death. These are words that remind us that God knows everything, so we should not worry but rather proclaim the Gospel. Though these words were spoken over 2,000 years ago, they continue to be proclaimed even today in funeral Mass readings. May the words I speak today be words of comfort and encouragement. May the words I speak today proclaim truth and justice.
"Shine like stars in the world, holding fast to the word of life."
