Today's Liturgy

[First Reading] Acts 6:1-7
[Responsorial Psalm] Psalm 33:1-2, 4-5, 18-19
R. Lord, let your mercy be on us, as we place our trust in you.

[Second Reading] 1 Peter 2:4-9
[Gospel Acclamation]
 ◎ Alleluia, alleluia.
I am the way, the truth and the life, says the Lord;
 no one comes to the Father, except through me. ◎ Alleluia, alleluia.

[Gospel] John 14:1-12
[Communion Antiphon]
I am the true vine and you are the branches, says the Lord. Whoever remains in me, and I in him, bears fruit in plenty, alleluia.

강론

Fifth Sunday of Easter (Respect Life Sunday)
Dear brothers and sisters in Christ, peace be with you. These days, through the news, we are confronted with the harsh reality of war. The war between Russia and Ukraine has continued for four years now, and the conflict between the United States and Iran has already lasted for two months. Each time a missile is launched, millions of dollars vanish. Daily military operations cost tens of millions, sometimes even hundreds of millions of dollars. Even operating a single aircraft carrier costs millions of dollars per day. These are numbers we cannot easily see, yet they clearly come from the sweat and taxes of people.

We might reflect in this way: with the cost of just one missile, how many of the poor could receive medical care? With one day's cost of war, how many students could receive scholarships? With the daily cost of maintaining an aircraft carrier, how many communities could be sustained? War burns through enormous amounts of money, yet its flames do not give life. Rather, they destroy it.

In today's reading from the Acts of the Apostles, the early Church shows us a completely different path. A problem arose. As the number of believers increased, the distribution of food began to be neglected. At that moment, the apostles said, "It is not right that we should neglect the word of God to serve at table." They then chose men filled with the Spirit and wisdom and entrusted this responsibility to them, while they devoted themselves to prayer and the ministry of the word. What was the result? "The word of God continued to spread, and the number of the disciples increased greatly."

The early Church was not a community that tried to do everything perfectly. It was a community that discerned what was most important. This message quietly poses a question to our Church today: Where are we placing our efforts? Where are we spending our resources? Certainly, the Church needs events and buildings; they are necessary for the life of the community. However, if we find ourselves investing more of our hearts and resources in visible structures and external expansion than in caring for the poor and proclaiming the Gospel, then we must return to the spirit of the early Church.

The essence of the Church is not buildings, but people. The center of the Church is not structure, but life. The Apostle Peter says, "Like living stones, let yourselves be built into a spiritual house." Living stones are not stones that raise walls higher; they are stones that give life. They support one another and sustain life together. Jesus clearly tells us, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life." What has the Lord entrusted to us? Not missiles. Not power. But the Gospel. Love. Life. Therefore, we must ask ourselves once again: Where is my heart? Where is the heart of our community? Our lives follow where our hearts rest. Our values are revealed by where our resources flow. War burns money, but love gives life. War leaves ruins, but the Gospel builds communities.

Jesus also says, "I am the true vine, and you are the branches." For a branch to live, it must remain connected to the vine. If we are to bear the fruit of life, we must remain in the Lord. When we abide in Him, we naturally choose life. We choose to share. We choose to love. Today, we stand before a moment of choice: destruction or life, consumption or sharing, expansion or love. Let us remember this: the way we use our money reveals our faith. The path we choose reveals our belief. And wherever we choose to love, there the Kingdom of God begins.
