강론

Solemnity of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ, During a pilgrimage, I saw a rather special sculpture in Fatima. In one corner of the plaza, there was a bench, and on that bench lay the figure of a homeless person. At first glance, it simply looked like a homeless man covered with an old blanket. But when I came closer, I saw the wounds of nails on his feet. It was the image of Jesus, bearing the marks of the Cross. This work was created as a meditation on the words of Matthew 25: "Whatever you did for one of these least brothers of mine, you did for me." When this sculpture was first proposed for installation in a certain diocese, it was reportedly rejected because it was considered "not appropriate" or "not dignified enough." But when Pope Francis heard about this, he made a very different choice. He provided showers and a place of rest for the homeless at the Vatican, and at Christmas and Easter he invited them to share a meal together.

In this same spirit, the Church came to embrace this sculpture. Pope Francis often reminds us: "The poor are not the decoration of the Church; they are at the center of the Church." The Church came to realize once again that the Lord is present precisely in the place we so often turn away from. Standing before that bench, I found myself thinking: the Eucharist we receive at Mass must also be present there. The mystery of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ, which we celebrate today, is exactly this. To recognize Jesus present under the appearances of bread and wine, and to discover that same Jesus in our daily lives this is the heart of the Eucharist. The Eucharist is not simply a devotion we receive; it is a love that opens our eyes and transforms our lives.

There is a community that lives out this spirit of the Eucharist in a beautiful way. It is Kkottongnae, the "Flower Village." Kkottongnae began with the faith-filled conviction: "If a person still has the strength to beg for food, that too is a grace from the Lord." In this community, those abandoned by the world, those with no one to rely on, and those in the lowest places are welcomed as family. They are given food, they are cared for, they live together, and their dignity is protected. The volunteers of Kkottongnae do not simply offer help. They serve Jesus who is present in those people. Faith in the Eucharist does not end inside the church. It becomes a living and moving love among our poor neighbors. The love of Kkottongnae has not remained only in Korea. It has spread to many parts of the world. Kkottongnae has established communities in places such as Mexico, the Philippines, Haiti, and Peru, living together with the poor and the marginalized. Where there is a lack of food, they share meals. Where there are many who are sick, they care for them. Where there are lonely people, they become family.

Their languages and cultures may be different, but the love they share is one. It is the love flowing from the Eucharist, crossing borders and reaching beyond nations. Just as we share one bread, they share love with one heart. This truly shows that the words of Saint Paul are still alive today: "Because the loaf of bread is one, we, though many, are one body." In the Old Testament, the people of Israel ate manna in the desert. In their hunger and thirst, God sustained them with food from heaven. But the meaning of manna was not simply to fill their stomachs. God wanted them to realize that "one does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes forth from the mouth of the Lord." God humbled them, allowed them to experience hunger, and then fed them, so that they might learn where true life comes from.

This truth became even clearer in the community of the early Church. The believers held everything in common and shared with those who were in need. They broke bread and prayed together, and in doing so they became one community. The cup of blessing that we bless is a participation in the Blood of Christ, and the bread that we break is a participation in the Body of Christ. By sharing one bread, we become one body. In today's Gospel, Jesus tells us that He is the "Bread of Life." Jesus, the true bread come down from heaven, gave Himself so that we might live. In the Mass, we receive this Bread of Life. But it must not end there. The Body of Christ that we receive must go out into the world through our lives.

When we recognize and love Jesus lying on the bench in Fatima, Jesus present among the poor of Kkottongnae, and Jesus present in the least of our brothers and sisters whom we meet each day, then we truly become people who have received the Eucharist well. The Eucharist is a love that transforms us, and that love is completed through sharing. May the Bread of Life we receive today live and move within us, so that we may live in the world as the Body of Christ. "The bread that we break, is it not a participation in the Body of Christ? Because the loaf of bread is one, we, though many, are one body, for we all partake of the one loaf."
