Homily

Mass for the Evangelization of Peoples
(World Mission Sunday)

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,
Not long ago, I attended a meeting of priests from our deanery. One of the presentations was about the development of artificial intelligence and the true greatness of the human person. Artificial intelligence can search through enormous amounts of information in seconds, create writing and images, and even help solve complicated problems. Yet one question remains: Where does the true greatness of the human person lie? The fact that machines can calculate faster and remember more than we can does not make human beings less valuable. Instead, it invites us to ask a deeper question: What are we living for? And on this World Mission Sunday, the Church asks us: What are we called to bring to the world, and how can our lives reveal the Gospel?

In the Bible, the story of the Tower of Babel shows what happens when human beings trust too much in their own power. The problem was not that they built something great, but that they believed they could live without God. Technology and human progress are not evil in themselves. The danger begins when power becomes pride. A similar lesson appears in Tolkien’s The Lord of the Rings. The One Ring promises great power, yet those who seek to possess it eventually become enslaved by it. The mission of destroying the Ring is entrusted not to the strongest warrior, but to Frodo, a small and ordinary hobbit. Yet even Frodo cannot complete the journey alone. He needs Sam and the help of his companions. A truly great person is not someone who can do everything alone, but someone who recognizes his or her limitations and knows how to walk with others. Technology can make us more powerful, but only love can make us truly great.

Human beings were created to depend upon one another. From birth, we need the love of our parents. We depend on farmers for food, on doctors and nurses when we are sick, and on the gifts of creation for air, water, and sunlight. Ultimately, we depend on God. Jesus said, “I am the vine, you are the branches.” Just as a branch cannot live apart from the vine, we cannot find true life apart from God. Faith is not training ourselves to become strong enough to do everything alone. Faith is learning to depend on God, to walk with others, and to become someone upon whom others can also depend.

Today is World Mission Sunday. Mission is not simply bringing people into the Church. It is revealing, through our words and our lives, the Kingdom of God that Jesus proclaimed. It is sharing the Good News with the poor, offering compassion to the sick, and opening a path of forgiveness to sinners.

For this reason, mission begins not with words, but with service. A Catholic woman once helped a young wife who had no faith by visiting her regularly, helping with household chores, and even doing her shopping when she was busy. Through that kindness, the young woman gradually came to see the Church in a new way and eventually received Baptism. The Gospel must often be experienced before it can be explained. Being present with someone who is suffering, holding the hand of someone who is lonely can be powerful forms of evangelization.

Mission also requires passion and patience. When I was serving at Yongsan Parish, a man named Joseph faithfully mailed the parish bulletin to Catholics who had stopped coming to church, even searching for their new addresses when they moved. At first, there was little visible result, but over time many returned to the practice of their faith. Mission is not about planting a seed today and expecting fruit tomorrow. We plant seeds of love and wait for God to give the growth. If we continue to serve with patience and faithfulness, the seeds of the Gospel may already be growing in ways we cannot yet see.

During Mass, when the priest says, “The Lord be with you,” we respond, “And with your spirit.” But we may also ask: With whom did the Lord choose to be? Jesus chose to be with the poor, the sick, sinners, foreigners, and those who were often forgotten. He became their friend, wiped away their tears, and invited them to the table of the Kingdom of God. We, too, are called to be with the people with whom Jesus chose to be. This is the evangelization of all peoples. This is the true meaning of World Mission Sunday.

In the age of artificial intelligence, the Gospel we proclaim is not another Tower of Babel celebrating human power. It is the Kingdom of God, where people depend on one another, serve one another, and become brothers and sisters walking together in the light of the Lord. As the prophet Isaiah says, “They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks.” May we choose love rather than pride. May we proclaim the Gospel through service, passion, and patience.

And may we always remember the words of Jesus: “Go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations... And behold, I am with you always, until the end of the age.”
